

THE 14th DAY OF THE MONTH OF MAY
COMMEMORATION OF THE HOLY MARTYR ISIDORE OF THE ISLAND OF CHIOS
AT VESPERS

On "Lord, I have cried ...", these Stichera, in Tone IV:

Spec. Mel.: "Thou hast given a sign ...":

Lacerated with wounds, * thou didst strip away the skin-garments of mortality, * and arrayed in the vesture * and splendid purple robe * of incorruption, * thou didst quickly approach the Tree of life, * truly receiving life indestructible and endless, * O glorious one. * And, as thou now delightest therein,  preserve those who hymn thee.

Burning with the zeal of piety, * O martyr Isidore, * thou didst enter into the tribunal, * ardently accepting suffering, * and didst receive the crown of victory; * and, adorned with divine teachings * against falsehood, * and fortified by the armor of the Cross, * thou didst cast down the lying tyrant,  showing thyself to be a crown-bearer.

Truly the sufferings of the martyrs * have transcended * all manner of praise, * discourse and thought; * for, steadfast pillars of piety, * though clad like us * in mortal and passion-plagued bodies, * the glorious ones braved the fire * and triumphed over wounds,  as though suffering in someone else's bodies.

Glory ..., Now & ever ..., from the Pentecostarion.

Troparion, in Tone IV:

In his sufferings, Thy martyr Isidore O Lord, * received an imperishable crown from Thee, our God; * for, possessed of Thy might, * he set at naught the tyrants and crushed the feeble audacity of the demons.  By his supplications save Thou our souls.

Glory ..., Now & ever ..., Troparion from the Pentecostarion.

AT MATINS

Canon of the martyr, in Tone VIII:

ODE I

Irmos: Having passed through the water as upon dry land, * and having escaped the malice of the Egyptians, * the Israelites cried aloud: * Unto our God and Redeemer let us sing.

By thy supplications, O blessed Isidore, martyr of Christ, grant me enlightenment and grace from heaven, that I may praise thine honored festival.

Possessed of a perfect heart and soul, and having acquired a blameless life, O martyr Isidore, thou didst struggle well with the martyrs for God.

Having ordered thy life according to the law, O martyr Isidore, thou didst keep the Faith of salvation unadulterated, like a treasure which cannot be stolen away, O most blessed one.

Theotokion: Having truly given birth to Him Who is God by nature, thou, the pure Theotokos, dost truly hearken to the angel's call, bearing Him in both natures in thy divine birthgiving.

ODE III

Irmos: O Lord, thou art the confirmation of those who flee to Thee, * Thou art the Light of those in darkness, * and my spirit hymns Thee.

Guided by the Word, O glorious martyr and spiritual athlete of Christ, thou didst cause the uprisings of the passions to wither away through the virtues of fasting.

Possessed of an unashamed yearning of soul, O glorious one, thou didst most piously preserve thy confession uncompromised.

By thy supplications, O spiritual athlete, render thou the Judge of all merciful unto those who piously praise thy festival.

Theotokion: Mortify the wisdom of our flesh, O Virgin Sovereign Lady, and enliven the souls of those who hymn thee with faith.

Kontakion of the martyr, in Tone IV:

Spec. Mel.: "Thou hast appeared today ...":

In thy supplications unto God * thou wast revealed to be an all-great helmsman * on behalf of the whole world, O holy one; * wherefore, we hymn thee today,  O divinely wise and most glorious martyr Isidore.

Sedalion of the martyr, in Tone III:

Spec. Mel.: "Awed by the beauty of thy virginity ...":

Struggling against the serpent, thou didst win the victory, O martyr Isidore; and as a beacon from Egypt, illumining the whole world, thou hast shone forth, showing the way to Him Who shone forth from the divine Virgin Maiden: For His sake wast thou slain, O spiritual athlete, becoming a sacrifice of sweet savor.

Glory ..., Now & ever ..., Sedalion from the Pentecostarion.

ODE IV

Irmos: Thou, O Lord, art my strength and Thou art my power, * Thou art my God and Thou art my joy, * Thou Who, while never leaving the bosom of Thy Father, * hast visited our poverty. * Therefore with the Prophet Habbakuk I cry unto Thee, * ‘Glory to Thy power, O Lover of mankind!’

Having the Word dwelling wholly within thee, as an invincible warrior thou didst put to shame the pride of the tyrant, and having won victory for His sake, O blessed one, thou hast received from God an imperishable crown, O all-glorious martyr Isidore.

Like a youth thou didst put thine enemies to flight, breaking them asunder, O Isidore, and protected by the awesome weapon of the Cross, girded about with might; thou didst destroy those who hated thee, crying: Glory to Thy power, O Lover of mankind!

Following the death of the Master, thou didst endure sufferings for His sake; wherefore, the Lord of glory deemed thee worthy of life incorruptible, O martyr. And into His hands didst thou commit thy soul, O most blessed Isidore.

Theotokion: He Who became incarnate reneweth all of mankind, O most pure one, having united Himself to him without leaving the bosom of the Father; and it was His will to make His abode within thy womb. And, having voluntarily lowered Himself, He hath enriched the world with a wealth of tender compassion and divinity.

ODE V

Irmos: O Light never-waning, * why hast Thou turned Thy face from me * and why hath the alien darkness surrounded me, * wretched though I be? * But do Thou guide my steps I implore Thee * and turn me back towards the light of Thy commandments.

Thou didst offer thyself to Christ thy Master as a perfect and unblemished sacrifice, and, slain in thy zeal, thou didst shed thy blood, O Isidore, sharing in His suffering and becoming a worthy heir of His kingdom.

Strengthened by Thine omnipotent might, O Savior, the right victorious martyr Isidore did away with the gloom of deception; for, beheaded, he right laudably committed his soul to Thee, the Bestower of light, O Master.

The Church of Christ is adorned with thy precious blood and made luminous by thy sufferings through thine opposition to sin, O glorious one; for thou, O Isidore, didst mightily contend against it even to the shedding of thy blood.

Theotokion: Thou hast restored human nature, which in the beginning had become defiled and grievously corrupted by disobedience, becoming mortal, O most immaculate Lady Theotokos, who in a manner beyond understanding hast given birth to the Well-spring of immortality.

ODE VI

Irmos: I will pour out my prayer unto the Lord, * and to Him will I proclaim my grief; * for my soul is filled with evils, * and my life unto Hades hath drawn nigh, * and like Jonah I pray unto Thee: * Raise me up from corruption, O God.

Having acquired perfect love for God, O most blessed passion-bearer, thou didst truly forsake the love of earthly things for the sake of incorrupt good things, and didst hasten, crying aloud: "I have hastened to follow after Thee, O Master!"

Like a magnificent bridegroom adorned with the beauties of martyrdom, O Isidore, thou didst ascend, rejoicing, to the heavens, to stand before the Radiance which is the source of good, praying ever on behalf of those who keep thy memory.

Thou didst endure slaying, O spiritual athlete, truly looking forward to the eternal delight and the ever-living sustenance which awaited thee; and as an invincible martyr, with the martyrs thou didst truly receive a crown, O most blessed Isidore.

Theotokion: O Mary, thou dwelling-place of the Master, radiantly resplendent like a lily in the luminous rays of thy virginity amid a field of thorns, I beseech thee, O good one: Grant me forgiveness of sins.

Kontakion & Ikos from the Pentecostarion.

ODE VII

Irmos: The Hebrew children in the furnace * boldly trampled upon the flames, * changing the fire into dew, they cried aloud: * 'Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, throughout the ages'.

Shining now with spiritual radiance, O thrice-blessed one, be thou well-pleased to shine upon those who chant with thee, crying: Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, throughout the ages! (Twice)

O Thy supremely good struggles! For thou didst thereby destroy the delusion of idolatry and put to shame the cruelties of the tyrant, crying aloud: Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, throughout the ages!

Theotokion: O all-holy Virgin Sovereign Lady, with the oil of thy loving-kindness heal the wounds of mine offenses, for I cry: Blessed is the Fruit of thy womb, O most pure one!

ODE VIII

Irmos: In his wrath the Chaldean Tyrant made the furnace blaze, * with heat fanned sevenfold for the servants of God; * but when he perceived that they had been saved by a greater power * he cried aloud to the Creator and Redeemer; * 'ye children bless, ye priests praise, * ye people, supremely exalt Him throughout all ages'.

For selfish purposes the tyrant strove to break the might and power of thine endurance with tortures, O most blessed Isidore; but thou, O divinely wise one, didst cry out: "I fear Christ and serve Him! O ye Youths bless, O ye priests praise, O ye people, supremely exalt Him throughout all ages!"

Most radiant like the sun, thy countenance was shown to be serene through thy joy in martyrdom; for, slain like an unblemished lamb, thou didst offer thyself to God, to Whom as Creator thou didst cry out in hymns: O ye Youths bless, O ye priests praise, O ye people, supremely exalt Him throughout all ages!

Thy body appeared radiant to the ranks of angels who love thee and bore it aloft, O Isidore, shining with the effulgence of miracles and the divers graces of wonderworking; granting an abundance of healing unto those who cry: O ye Youths bless, O ye priests praise, O ye people, supremely exalt Him throughout all ages!

Theotokion: Even the tongues of orators are unable to praise thee, O Theotokos Mary, O pure Maiden, Bride of God; for from thy virginal womb which knew not wedlock thou hast given birth to Him Who is God over all, Whom Youths bless, priests praise, and people, supremely exalt throughout all ages.

ODE IX

Irmos: Heaven was stricken with awe, * and the ends of the earth were filled with amazement, * for God hath appeared in the flesh, * and thy womb was rendered more spacious than the heavens. * Wherefore, the ranks of men and of angels * magnify thee as the Theotokos.

Thou didst descend from the heavens in the richness of Thy loving-kindness, and willingly endured death for our sake, in that Thou art good, wherefore, looking to Thee, Isidore cried aloud: "I die with Thee, that I might live with Thee! I am crucified with Thee, that I might reign with Thee!"

O Isidore, the drops of thy blood which were lawfully shed upon the ground have magnificently dyed a robe for thee in the heavens, woven by grace; and now arrayed therein, thou dost stand before Christ in the bridal-chambers of heaven, wearing a crown, O most blessed and glorious martyr.

As thou hast boldness before Christ, O Isidore, cease not to pray that He deliver from tempest, tribulations and sufferings those who keep thy sacred memory as is meet, O thrice-blessed one, asking salvation of soul; and grant unto us thy portion.

Theotokion: In that thou hast given birth to the Savior and Redeemer, O most pure Maiden, grant that I might receive salvation, loosing the bonds of my transgressions by thy supplications; for thou canst accomplish all things whatsoever thou dost desire, in that thou from the abundance of thine incomparable goodness didst bear the King of all in thy bosom.

AT LITURGY

Troparion of the martyr, in Tone IV:

In his sufferings, Thy martyr Isidore O Lord, * received an imperishable crown from Thee, our God; * for, possessed of Thy might, * he set at naught the tyrants and crushed the feeble audacity of the demons.  By his supplications save Thou our souls.

Kontakion of the martyr, in Tone IV:

In thy supplications unto God * thou wast revealed to be an all-great helmsman * on behalf of the whole world, O holy one; * wherefore, we hymn thee today,  O divinely wise and most glorious martyr Isidore.